

«Outdated science» – en låt om foreldet strålevitenskap

Denne teksten ble først publisert på <http://einarflydal.com> den 27.04.2026

Alle som har forsøkt å sette seg litt inn i forskningen på feltet, skjønner nå at våre helsemyndigheter og strålevernet (DSA) er på ville veier i sitt forsvar av foreldede grenseverdier. Det skjønner også de som over lang tid har erfart at de får helseproblemer nær trådløst utstyr.

Visesangeren Mikkel har laget både tekst og musikk ut av saken i låta «Outdated science», som du kan spille av her:

Den britiske stiftelsen EM-Radiation Research Trust har fått retten til å spre låta videre, og takker rettighetsinnehaveren familien.

Låta kan du spille av her, og nedenfor har du teksten.

Låta er inspirert av Mikkels egne erfaringer og av behovet for større bevissthet og strengere forholdsregler når det gjelder trådløse teknologier. Den er en manns budskap om kjærlighet til sin kone, som i likhet med anslagsvis 5-10% av befolkningen har helseplager på grunn av el-følsomhet.

“Outdated science”

(tekst og melodi: Mikkel)

Verse 1

They say the numbers keep us safe
Written down in another age
When wires were thick and signals slow
And no one asked what bodies know
They test the heat, they test the burn
But close their eyes to what we've learned

Cells don't scream, they don't complain
But silence doesn't mean no pain

Pre-Chorus

You measure power, watts and heat
But life goes deeper than your sheet

Chorus

Your limits draw outdated lines
Ignoring signs, ignoring time
Not just about what heats the skin
But what gets under, deep within
We're not statistics, we're alive
Your standards lag, your science hides
Listen closer, read again
Biology is speaking, friend

Verse 2

New papers buried, brushed aside
"Not proven yet" becomes the lie
But proof was once a whisper too
Before the truth came breaking through
Oxidative stress, disrupted sleep
Barriers crossed you swore would keep
No smoke, no fire, no warning sound
Just subtle cracks beneath the ground

Pre-Chorus

Absence of proof is not the same
As proof that nothing changed

Chorus

Your limits draw outdated lines
Ignoring signs, ignoring time
Not just about what heats the skin
But what gets under, deep within
We're not statistics, we're alive
Your standards lag, your science hides
Listen closer, read again
Biology is speaking, friend

Bridge

Once it was lead, once it was smoke
Once it was lies that "no one broke"
History taught us, page by page

Delay has always had a cost to pay
Precaution's not the enemy
It's wisdom born of memory

Verse 3

We're not against the future's call
But blind progress helps no one at all
If tech moves fast, then so must care
You can't just say "we don't know" and dare
Children growing, night and day
Bathed in fields they didn't choose to stay
If there is doubt, then slow the race
That's how you honor human space

Final Chorus

Your limits draw outdated lines
Ignoring signs, ignoring time
Not just about what heats the skin
But what gets under, deep within
We're not statistics, we're alive
Your standards lag, your science hides
Update truth, don't wait for blame
Health before the profit game

Outro

If science grows, then rules must too
The burden's not on me or you
When life's at stake, the path is clear
Precaution now — not years from here
